WANTED – New Premises for Rotary Archives

Our Club's archives are currently housed at Gardner Croft, courtesy of Peer Le Fleming. The premises offer a dry atmosphere and enough space for a filing cabinet, two sets of shelves and several boxes as well as for a small table if needed.

Unfortunately, however, they are in an attic, reached by a steep and narrow wooden set of steps. This means that they are not easily accessible. Peer likes to be around when I am going up and when I am coming down.

This inhibits quick consultation, the putting of the archives in the best possible order and the use of the archives by researchers into Rotary history from 1922 onwards.

Peer and I have agreed to make enquiries about finding new premises, and I should be glad to hear from anyone who has a bright idea on the subject.
